

5530 Praxis Test

Section: 5511 Fundamental Subjects Exams • Total Questions: 1 • Format: Verified Q&A

1. The speaker uses the images of the stream primarily to show how Saving for the one weird smile at first, I should have felt almost sure that Miss Havisham's face could not smile. It had dropped into a watchful and brooding expression—most likely when all the things about her had become transfixed—and it looked as if nothing could ever lift it up again. Her chest had dropped, so that she stooped; and her voice had dropped, so that she spoke low, and with a dead lull upon her; altogether, she had the appearance of having dropped, body and soul, within and without, under the weight of a crushing blow.

- (A) unpleasant weather can corrupt and pollute the purity of running water
- (B) the natural beauty of running water can reflect its surroundings
- (C) troubled thoughts work themselves out naturally over time
- (D) time tends to make chaotic thoughts more disruptive