1. The passage is primarily concerned with which of the following?

Although nineteenth-century poet Emily Dickinson is well-known today, her poems remained largely unpublished in her own lifetime. Scholars agree that this was Dickinson's choice, but they disagree as to the reason for her decision. Some say she did not want the unique characteristics of her handwritten poems to be lost during the typesetting process. Others say she did not want the publicity that often accompanies publication. This second argument seems to me to be a likely explanation.

- (A) Providing a history of attempts to refine the juvenile justice system
- (B) Describing the campaign to alter prison sentences for those in debt
- (C) Providing an overview of the social changes affected by one individual
- (D) Describing the contribution of one individual to improving care of the mentally ill
