Praxis Core Reading 5722

Section: 5752 Core Academic Skills for Educators • Total Questions: 1 • Format: Verified Q&A

1. The passage is primarily concerned with

> The scientist Jacob Bronowski was one of those rare people who take children seriously. The final chapter of his book The Ascent of Man is titled 'The Long Childhood.' Bronowski argued that it is our long childhood that has not only made humans unique in nature but allowed us to develop civilization. He saw childhood as a time for the young to develop both strategies for life and values to live by.

(A) challenging the theories of a particular scientist about childhood
(B) asserting that a particular scientist is best known for his work on childhood
(C) describing a debate over the importance of childhood
(D) presenting the views of a particular scientist on childhood
(E) discussing widely held views on childhood